

Abstract:

In a production method of an organic EL device by using an ink jet method, a discharge amount of an ink composition for a light emitting layer is made greater than a discharge amount of an ink composition for a hole injection/transportation layer so that a film formation region of the light emitting layer becomes equal to, or greater than, a film formation region of the hole injection/transportation layer.